Casa Vinicola Bosco Malera’s Prosecco DOC Rosè Extra Dry Bosco dei Cirmioli

scritto da Redazione Wine Meridian | 13 Luglio 2024

The strength of this group, known on an international level, is a guarantee of selections aimed from the vineyard to the shelf with products obtained from a vast territory particularly suited for the cultivation of the main grape for Prosecco production: Glera.

The art of Bosco Viticultori in the production of sparkling wines, besides being the result of great experience, is also supported by a highly skilled technical and agronomic staff.

In this Prosecco Rosè we tasted today, we indeed found all the taste/olfactory elements that honor those who have worked for many years on this territory, so rich in mineral elements that complete the wine’s harmony.

Its perlage is fine and very lively. In the glass, the aromas expand by gently swirling the glass, immediately revealing the floral and fruity notes typical of the grapes used. In the olfactory finish, there are also aromatic notes that fully balance the olfactory part.

On the palate, it is broad and well-balanced in acidity and sapidity, with a long and intense finish that makes the drinking experience pleasant, completing it with excellent smoothness.

It is a “festive” sparkling wine. Indeed, this Prosecco Rosè, starting from the aperitif, showcases all its characteristics both in pleasantness and pairing. The part of Pinot Nero used allows this wine to be paired with pasta with red seafood sauces, paella, and baked fish with vegetables, although the aperitif among true friends is its natural habitat!

Company Profile

Bosco Viticultori is located in Salgareda, in the heart of the Eastern Veneto: a land ever oriented to wine production, in a region backed by a great history and important cities like Venice, Verona and Treviso, from where the culture of Prosecco originates. Thanks to its know-how, well strengthened over time, and modern technological equipment, Bosco Viticultori gives birth to a selected and quality production expressing the characteristics and peculiarities typical of this territory: clear, assertive, intense in scent; modulated, delicate and pure in taste.

CASA VINICOLA BOSCO MALERA
Via Correr, 17 – Salgareda, Treviso – 31040, Italia
+39 0422807818 – info@boscoviticultori.com
www.boscoviticultori.com

Doser