“This is a very important productive project – underlines Corrado Giacomini, Vi.V.0 cellars president which with more than 2000 associate producers and around 6.300 vineyard hectares is, for dimensions, the most important first grade wine cooperative of the Eastern Veneto and the 4th on a national level – which would like to highlight due decisive factors for us: on one hand the territory’s high qualitative vocation where our associate’s vineyards are planted; on the other hand, our cellars’ extraordinary capacity of capitalizing best our grapes’ quality.

It is a constant qualitative progress, the one by Cantine Viticoltori Veneto Orientale, the fruit of both the associates’ capacity and effort, but also of the wine technical staff which allows the well-known cooperative group in Veneto to represent one of the most interesting and dynamic production models of the national wine sector.

With the new Prà dei Dogi Vi.V.0 line, Cantine wants to testify concretely which qualitative levels can be reached with three wine typologies which are well known and spread.

“We chose three popular and successful wines – concludes Giacomini – to highlight how a great qualitative profile with great recognition can be obtained even in products who have a great quantitative diffusion”.
