We have written it in other occasions, we are convinced fans of Anna Spinato, a company which combines high-quality productions with courage and innovation also on the packaging side.

A further example (in this direction) is in their "Mini Prosecco", a 100% Glera Prosecco enclosed in a 187/200ml bottle, enveloped by a white sleeve with the stylized design of the 70s figures dressed up in a cloud of bubbles. A strongly innovative image and, for some aspects, revolutionary that is well suited to the message, to the Prosecco's icon, especially on the International Market.

But also the 187/200 ml content makes it very easy to consume our popular bubble, becoming more and more trendy and adaptable to the most varied contexts (from the diner to the wine bar).

But this does not have to be deceived, it's a Prosecco that has definitely passed the tasting exam giving us the typical Glera features, a nice nose of yellow fruit, peach and apricot first, a pleasing freshness in the mouth and nothing sickening.

We enjoyed it with a delicious aperitif of tuna carpaccio and the "Mini Prosecco" was well maintained by the royal marine wedding.

ANNA SPINATO WINERY

Anna Spinato is a winery situated in the Veneto region, in the North-East of Italy and has its headquarters in Ponte di Piave, which is only 40 km away from the romantic city of Venice. It is in this area, with its soil particularly suitable for the cultivation of vines, that the company was born.

It was back in 1952 when the enological potentialities of this land touched by the water of the river Piave took shape in the form of Spinato's wines. A thrilling and grounded start thanks to the charismatic figure of Pietro, Anna's father. In 2002, driven by the love for her land and following her father's precious teaching, Anna became the leading figure of the company with her same name. Undertaking this journey in the world of wine and carrying on her family's tradition, she has managed to give every single bottle all the best features of the land and she has worked hard in order to make her quality wines well known and appreciated even abroad.

Today, she is supported by her son Roberto, who is in charge of supervising the production line through the collaboration with professional figures such as technicians and winemaker. Together, they have been pushing the company towards new future ideas but by always keeping an eye on tradition.
